

2013 Sieg des Kapitalismus

Am 28. Februar 2013 wird im Wallstreet Journal nüchtern festgestellt:

„That is democracy in today's Eurozone. The French, Spanish, Irish, Dutch, Portuguese, Greeks, Slovenians, Slovakians and Cypriots have to varying degrees voted against the currency bloc's economic model since the crisis began three years ago. Yet economic policies have changed little in response to one electoral defeat after another.“

D.h.: Der Kapitalismus ('das neoliberale Programm') ist, trotz gegenläufiger Wahlentscheidungen in zahlreichen Ländern, demokratisch nicht mehr abwählbar.